Stylish and supremely Italian, yet with quiet charm, this resort offers sunny, snow-sure conditions and lashings of la dolce vita. With slopes tumbling down into town from both sides of the valley, Campiglio's pedestrianized village has an intimate atmosphere.

Italians take eating, shopping, and strolling at least as seriously as skiing, so Campiglio's tree-lined slopes are rarely busy - and by late afternoon they're virtually empty. There are over 150 km of slopes which always seem to be manicured. There is a good mixture of intermediate and advanced slopes.
