Telluride is an old Victorian mining town with wild west atmosphere in the heart of the San Juan Mountains.

The town center has all you need from cowboy bars to cocktails and fancy grills, along with good lodging and million dollar homes. But it's up on the hill that Telluride shines. It's got steeps, trees, smooth long glades and more alpine terrain up on Palmyra peak. And I've not even mentioned the chutes. There's enough here to keep everyone happy inbounds. But local guides can also take you into the back country that's visible from the ski area boundary.
